"Allow Access To:" of "All Registered Users" not functional

06 September 2011 02:17 PM - krileon

Target version:	CB 1.7.1
Description
When setting "Allow Access To:" to "All Registered Users" on a J1.6/J1.7 install it acts just like "Everyone" meaning public users can still access profiles. All other usergroups appear to function perfectly fine so workaround is to simply select "Registered" instead.

This also affects userlists and probably anywhere else it's being used.

- Subject changed from J1.7: "Allow Access To:" of "All Registered Users" not functional to "Allow Access To:" of "All Registered Users" not functional Updated title as it affects all CMS and not just J1.7.

When testing against "All Registered Users" it was just seeing if $gid was greater then 0, which is always the case as "Public" on J1.5 is 29 and on J1.7 is 1. I've changed this to first check if $gid exists (in cases where it's still passing 0) and if it does check to see if it's not "Public".

Fixed as suggested in r1577 .

Thanks Kyle.
